Cork... the friendliest city in the world

ACET Cork... the perfect study destination

The Irish Prime Minister visiting ACET

Ireland is a beautiful scenic country, with great natural beauty, rugged mountains, blue lakes and sandy beaches. Irish culture has had a significant influence on other cultures in the fields of literature, music, science and education.

Cork is Ireland's second city with a population of 190,000. It is a beautiful city to wander around with its remarkable charm and unique atmosphere created by the 19th century narrow lanes and markets. Cork is included in the Lonely Planet Guide as one of the world's top ten cities to visit. One of the things that makes Cork so special is its people. Cork people are relaxed, friendly, spontaneous and talkative. "There are no strangers, only friends you have not met."
