

STUDENT RESIDENCE PHILADELPHIA

The Edge Student Residence

The Edge Student Residence is located on Temple University's campus. Many American students attending Temple University live in this residence, so it's a great opportunity for international students to make local friends. Students have their own bedroom and bathroom, and share a living space and small kitchenette with one other student. Rooms are fully furnished with a bed, desk, chair and flat screen tv.

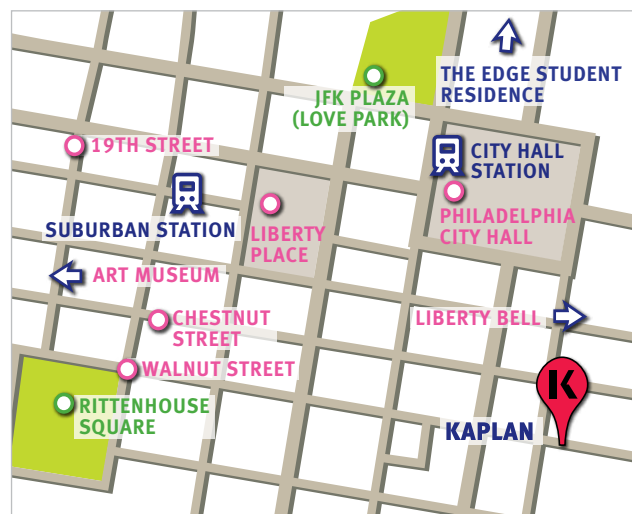

The Edge residence has a contemporary industrial style with rough surfaces and unfinished look. The infrastructure is often on full display, with exposed cement walls, ductwork and exposed beams showing the structural skeleton that holds the space together.

The residence has several resident advisors as well as a community advisor on staff to assist students. It also offers great amenities, such as a game room complete with a large flat screen tv, ping pong table, foosball table, darts board and an air hockey table. There is also a well-equipped fitness center on the 8th floor, a computer lounge and study rooms available for students to use. Students have several dining options right on the ground floor, including Vietnamese food, frozen yogurt, and famous Philly hoagies.

The Edge Student Residence is approximately 15-20 minutes from the Kaplan International Philadelphia school by public transit: bus or subway.
